Refrigerators and Ice Chests for 1905.

As the Refrigerator season is about at hand, we desire to call special attention to the "Peerless" Refrigerator, which we are again handling for the sixth consecutive year.

We consider this the most easily cleaned, most sanitary, most perfect ice preserver and the most all-round perfect Refrigerator ever put on the

The construction of this Refrigerator is of the very best; the outer case being of selected ash, thoroughly dried in hot-air dry kilns; the panels are in one piece, and are grooved into the rails and stiles, which are mortised together in the most substantal manner, making a perfectly tight cabinet. The joining and cabinet work are the best obtainable in a refrigerator; the inner case or body is of kiln-dried, closely matched, odorless wood, lined with metal and fastened together with hardwood cleats, which support the outside case, making a refrigerator which cannot be equaled for strength, durability and beauty. The space between the inner and outer cases is filled with the best non-conducting material known-mineral-wool filling-and this filling is so put in that it cannot settle or shake down. The floors of the provision chamber are covered with metal and are on a level with the bottom of the door, making it easy to keep clean, if anything should be spilled in it; the walls of the provision chamber are lined with metal of the best quality, the joints being carefully soldered to prevent anything spilled from leaking through, which might cause the case to swell; provision chambers are furnished with metal shelves-cleanliest made -and so open as to offer no obstruction to -and so open as to oner no obstruction to the free circulation of air. The locks and hinges are made of solid bronze. There is not an inch of the entire inner surface of the "Peerless" but that can be cleaned readily of all impurities.

The new sanitary cleanable flue wall used s by far the best improvement now used in refrigerators. It is a flue within a flue, and operates upon the same principle as he forced draft. The improved "Peerless" ice rack is the most perfect of any made and is one of the leading features in the construction and working of the "Peer-less" system of refrigeration. It is made of metal and braced and riveted in such a manner as to give the greatest possible strength. The "Peerless" sanitary drain pipe and drip cup, both of which are easily removable, are circular in shape and im-portant features, as they prevent the possibility of cold air escaping from the ice chamber, or of warm air entering from the outside. Our very successful experience during the past five years with this Refrigerator prompts us to recommend it, without the least hesitation, to those wishing a strictly first-class Refrigerator—one that will keep the food pure and sweet, and one that will not use a large amount

Aside from the intrinsic value of a clock, there clings around it a sweet sentement, that makes it an ever welcome gift. The vast variety now on exhibition will make the selection of one a genuine pleasure. There is hardly a known style that is not represented here. The celebrated French clocks are in all the newest designs; the Capid scroll, the bow-knot, surmounted by the American eagle, the easel-clock with rhinestone frame, dainty clocks on antique marble base superb onyx inlaid in most intricate pattern forms the housing of timepleces that have consumed many hours in their fashioning. There are antique iron clocks, suitable for hall, den or boudoir. The bronze clocks are in handsome styles, and the hand-carved mahogany and oak clocks are superb. More elaborate even are the mantel sets, comprising clock and candelabra, in French gilt. There are merry bird clocks-the Cuckoo, and grand, impressive clocks, to mark the happy events of all this changeful life, and the blessed hour when loved ones pass to eternal joys. There is no other

Every one has pictures, and frames are no small consideration at Easter, when pictures are plentiful. Here are superb imported frames of richly embossed leather, gun-metal, French gilt and sterling silver. Florentine frames with handpainted miniatures of celebrated characters, on ivory signed by the artists. Frames of French tapestry with gilt, and an endless variety of other Pedestals with or without statues are peculiarly ppropriate at Easter. They come in finest marble, showing all its charming colorings, solemn black, with here and there a faint streak of light; pink and blue velned marble; marble in every shade and hue, and lovely always, the pure white Italian marble. On many of these are exquisite statues bearing the sculptor's name.

Electricity now carries into the home a most The colored shades for these are adorned with me dallions of rich colorings, and many are fringed around with beads of vari-colors, the whole radiating a most bewitching light. In many flowers are represented so perfectly that it appears as if the light were coming from each spray. They are in all sizes from the very large, imposing electrolier to the tiniest light, peeping from one single flower. They are imported, and their nationality is quite in evidence. Beautiful as they undoubtedly are, they have not displaced the silk shades, which are shown in great profusion and every imaginable color. The delicate tints and fluffy styles still

Fancy combs are still in demand, and they are decorated in elaborate pattern, though each design s in perfect taste.

Garter buckles have given place to the large bow of ribbon, and this decoration appears in many dainty colors. The present season, perhaps because it is so generally a season for brides, the favorite is yellow. But all polors are beautiful in the elegant affairs shown.

Gifts suited for nien or women are the hand-some leather deak baskets some are embossed Vienna, also portfolios, racks for paper and en-velopes, deak sets, comprising lukwell, paper hold-ers, candiestick, wax corner for blotters and every conceivable necessity for a desk. Blotters in glass and green onyx, which are entirely new, are just imported.

Table accessories that make useful and beautiful gifts are abundant. There are pieces unique and not to be duplicated in that rare goods, Deposit Ware, also in burnished bronze. A most graceful candlestick has a bintished bronze base, from which extends a very tall stemlike shaft, surmounted by a solid-cilver-holder for the candle. Adjustable bookholders are far solid brass and very handsome. A solid silver-holder for the candle. Adjustable bookholders are far of celery saits surround a cut glass celery dish, in a most exquisite case. There are many varieties of small dishes in cut glass, also in decorated china. Sait stands come in numerous styres, and sait being the one necessary foundation of so many of the good things of life, a sait cell of any fashion carries with it a thought of stability and worth.

From the olden days women have loved the opera hags, whether they frequented the opera or stayed away; they never have failed to want one of these charming possessions. Those on exhibit here are particularly beautiful. Some are entirely of beadwork, wrought in interesting designs; some are of soft satin and silk, exquisitely embroidered in delicate colors, with an amount of gold and silver. Some have handsome clasps—some have ribbons and some are closed with cords.

A gift that hints of useful industry, and is pleasing to every woman, even though she never sews, is a work-basket. This year they are remarkably beautiful, in leather, and either fitted or unfitted with all needful articles. They are also in other material, all quite new. A card case 's a dainty gift, as is also a car-riage or handbag. They are of alligator also; both card cases and handbags come in silk and satin, black and white and delicate colors. Some are em-broidered very richly. Some are in beadwork and are quite elaborate and stunning.

NEW EXCURSION BOAT

RANDALL LINE BUYS STEAMER POCAHONTAS.

Vessel Will Be Run to River View and on Colonial Beach

Route.

Capt. E. S. Randall, president and gen eral manager of the Randall Steamboat and Excursion Company of this city, closed a deal yesterday at Richmond for the purchase of the handsome sidewheel steamer Pocahontas and she will be in service on the river during the coming excursion sea-

This was the information given The Star reporter at the Randall line offices in this city this morning. The new steamer is to be used in running excursions to River View and Colonial Beach, and wilu start her service when the excursion season on the river opens in the latter part of next

This information will be received with pleasure by the large number of persons who each summer visit Colonial Beach and spend their vacations at the resort. The Pocahontas was built at the works of Harlan & Hollingsworth at Wilmington, Del., a large freight room, with the engineer's room and tollets. Aft, in the social hall on the main deck, is the purser's office and a large women's cabin. Several state rooms and bright, with big windows on all sides. Private parlors are a feature of the fitting out of the boat, and they are handsomely

The saloon fittings are handsome, and harmonize with the white, blue and gold decorations. The hurricane deck, to which passengers also have access, is large and is approached by two roomy stairways, one

Capacity of 1,500 Passengers.

The steamer can easily carry 1,500 pasengers to Colonial Beach without crowding, and those who have traveled on her say she can make as good speed with a crowd aboard as she can with only a few hundred. The dining room and kitchen are located below the main deck, in the after part of the boat, but they are lighted by large deadlight windows and are cool and comfortable, even in the hottest weather.

Taking her altogether the Pocahontas is regarded as a fine steamer and is in keep-ing with the growing excursion business between this city and River View and Colonial Beach.

Captain Randall announced that he would have a new excursion boat on the river for the coming season, and he early made overtures for the Pocahontas as being the speedy and handsomely appointed craft he wished. The deal hung up for several months on a question of price, but this was finally adjusted and, as stated, the papers transferring the boat to the Randall Ex-cursion Company were signed yesterday.

Under the terms of the transfer the Virginia Navigation Company retains possession of the boat until it can secure another steamer for its Richmond-Norfolk route, but she must be delivered here by May 28. During the early part of the excursion sea son she will be used to carry excursions to River View, and will make weekly trips to Colonial Beach. Later in the season steamer, she will be used in the River View and Colonial Beach business.

The purchase of the Pocahontas is one of the most important deals that has taken place in steamboat property here for sev-eral years and is in keeping with the rapid growth of the excursion business in the river. The new steamer will be an important addition to the local fleet of pleasure

MRS. SMITH'S CONTENTION IN TALKS ENTERTAININGLY OF SO-APPEAL CASE.

Not a Municipal but a Private Congressional Act-No Express Duty Was Imposed.

The Court of Appeals, by an opinion written by Justice Anderson of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, who sat as a member of the appellate tribunal during the hearing of the cause, has affirmed the order of the trial court in directing a verdict in favor of the District of Columbia in the case of Elizabeth R. Smith, administratrix of the estate of her husband. Peter A. Smith, to recover damages for the death of the latter the night of July 1, 1901. Mr. Smith met his death while a passenger or one of the cars of the Georgetown and Tennallytown Railway Company on 32d street. with his elbow resting on the west guard rail, when the car passed another car going in the opposite direction. Mr. Smith's el-bow was struck by the south-bound car. He was dragged over the guard rails, be-tween the cars, and killed. ailway company from a judgment in favor

Mrs. Smith contended in the appeal case n which the District of Columbia was a party, that the act of Congress incorporating the railway company provided that the District Commissioners should approve the construction of the road, and that the District had the power, and it was its duty, both under the general law and the special always nice gifts. A large case is filled with the manner of the construction and mainthe city, and the selection and operation of the cars used, and that because of deof the cars used, and that because of de-fault in the performance of that duty the municipality was liable for damages for Mr. Smith's death. By direction of the trial judge a verdict in favor of the District was rendered by the jury. The Court of Appeals points out that the grant to the railway company under which it constructed its road was not a municipal but a private congressional act, in the granting of which the District had no voice and was equally impotent to restrain or terminate it. No express duty was imposed upon the municipality and none can

It was the duty of the railway company, according to the Court of Appeals, to take precautionary measures to safeguard its passengers, and Mr. Smith's death was caused either by his own negligence or the negligence of the railway company.

INCLUSION OF ST. JOHN RIVER. Controversy With Canada Connected With the Lake Level Commission.

Among the questions now pending between London and Washington regarding Canada is one that affects the interpretation of the river and harbor bill of 1902, providing for the appointment of an inter-national commission to investigate and report upon the problems of water level, water supply and navigation of the waters adjacent to the Canadian boundary line, in-cluding all lakes and rivers whose natural cluding all lakes and rivers whose natural outlet is by the St. Lawrence river. Some question has arisen as to the scope of the commission of six which has already been appointed, the Washington government having taken the tentative position that its jurisdiction did not include the St. John without It is the wish of the Canadians that river. It is the wish of the Canadians that that river be included in the investigation, and they hold that such was the intention of the act. It apears that a similar interpretation has been placed upon the law by Mr. Choate, United States ambassador at London when he presented the invitaat London, when he presented the invita-tion for the appointment of the commission.

VERDICT FOR DISTRICT EDWIN MARKHAM HERE

CIAL CONSCIENCE.

Reference to Man With the Hoe-Believes in Woman's Rights and Universal Suffrage.

"That 'Man With the Hoe' is standing at able to get rid of him. He's like another Frankenstein," declared Edward Markham, laughingly, to a reporter for The Star this afternoon. "I have written other things, other poems that people have been kind enough to tell me are better than 'The Man With the Hoe,' and it is rather hard sometimes to be continually referred to as the author of that one thing. I really believe ome people do not know I ever wrote anything else."

Mr. Markham talks as he writes-easily and smoothly. He seems to have an inexhe uses it with the care and nicety of the man who has attained a high position in the world through the efforts of his brain. He is large and strongly built, with a wellshaped head, covered with silvery white hair, a heavy fringe of gray beard about his smiling mouth, and eyes which seem soft, and yet glisten. Such is the man Markham. His manner is gracious and kindly at all times, and his ability to maeems away above the average.

order that he may deliver an address on the "Social Conscience" before the National Council of Women at the Pythian Temple tonight. The "Social Conscience" is one of the things to which Mr. Markham has given much thought and attention.
"The thing I call the social conscience is the power that lies within all whole-souled, warm-blooded people to be social, and it is the thing that has helped make all noble minds, from the time of Jesus Christ to the present day, more beautiful and noble. My idea is to secure a working application of the golden rule to practical life. All relig-ion is founded on the social idea, and what is wanted is the higher and broader devel-opment of that scheme. The women have an important mission in this work of fostering and developing the social purity of

Believes in Women's Rights. "As to the position of women, I believe in woman's rights and equal suffrage and all that sort of thing. I believe the time is coming when women will enjoy equal rights with men. It must necessarily be so. At the time of the organization of society it was necessary that the strong arm of man should take the leadership and pull himself and his kind up from the mud of savagery, but that time has gone. The world has reached that stage of civilization that admits of the development of man and woman side by side. I do not mean that there shall be any difference as to the natural sphere of either man or woman, but that woman shall come into the enjoyment of equal rights in the administra-tion of the fruits of her labor.

"It is nice to get to Washington again. I was here last spring for a short time. I spand five months of the year on a little country place I have in New York and the rest of my time is passed in New York city. I am a working man. I write for a living and am at it all the time. Occasionally I deliver a lecture, like the address I made last night, but it is not often, as I do not care much for the business. I have many calls for such work that I am commany calls for such work that I am com-pelled to decline.

THE WASHINGTON PRESBYTERY VOTES FOR RACE SEPARATION.

INDORSES OVERTURE

Speeches in Opposition by Justice Harlan, Dr. Gordon, Rev. F. J.

In the debate vesterday at the meeting of the Washington presbytery on the overture in favor of forming separate presby teries for the colored churches of the denomination there were several earnest speeches against the proposition. In fact although the measure was carried, the addresses were nearly all against it. Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, led the discussion by stating that in his opinion such action would be unjust discrimination. This brought out a speech from Rev. Dr. J. F. Grimke, pastor of the only colored Presbyterian Church in this district, the Fifeenth Street Church, who spoke long and say to any race, 'Be ye separate; stand off by yourselves.' It would be a change in our form of government. The success of the colored men have not been segregated. It is not the spirit of Christ to humiliate a race and ignore their manhood. The great progress among the colored people in the south has been owing to the aid given by the board for work among the freedmen, while in the north there is no help from any church board. This complexion of pres-byteries has nothing whatever to do with the growth of Presbyterianism among either white or black; it depends on the amount of push and energy put into the Alleged Inconsistency.

"The Presbyterian general assembly worked itself up into a frenzy against exhibiting the 'Liberty Bell' on Sabbath, but it was willing to set up 'color line.' Verily, this is tithing mint and anise and cumin and omitting the weightler matters of the law. Our duty is to face the issue squarely, and we must hold up the standard Christ set up or must hold up the standard Christ set up or sever our connection with Him. It would be positively wrong to set up separate pres-byteries within the same bounds. It is simply a movement to cater to southern sentiment, which holds that the white man disgraces himself by any sort of affiliation with the black man. Up until even the present time, white men and women who go south to work among the colored men are ostracised. An eminent Englishman re-cently said: 'I have worked hard for thirty years among colored people, and there are not today five white men in the city of Atlanta who would invite me into their

"It is a base surrender to such sentiment as that for the great Presbyterian Church to adopt such an overture as that pro-

After speaking for almost an hour he concluded by saying: "I sometimes wonder how God can sit still and see such things going on in the Presbyterian Church; it must be an abomination unto God. It would be shameful to approve union with the Cumberland Presbyterians, thus diluting Calvinism and sacrificing twenty or thirty thousand faithful old members of the colored race."

Justice Harlan Opposes.

Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme Court, a lay member of the presbytery, spoke against the measure. He objected to the use of the word "northern," saying he belonged to the Presbyterian

"Let us stand in the ways of the fathers, and say to the world that as far as our church is concerned we are race blind and color blind," he said. Rev. Dr. John Gordon, president of Howard University, was opposed "to the or-ganization of any presbytery" of which he couldn't become a member."

Some of those who spoke briefly in favor of the overture was Rev. Dr. John Chester, who believed that it would be for the best interests of the colored people. It was this argument that prevailed with practically all who voted for the proposition, accord-ing to the best information obtainable.

The requisite number of presbyteries had indorsed this overture from the general arsembly before the local body acted. Final action will be taken at the next meeting of the general assembly.

SYSTEMATIC CO-OPERATION.

Theme Discussed at Meeting of Lenten Training Class. Methods of systematic co-operation between Washington's charities were discussed at the fifth meeting of the Lenten training class of the Associated Charities on Tuesday evening at 811 G street. Mr. Charles F. Weller read a special lecture, in connection with which he distributed a typewritten list of Washington charitable resources available for the assistance of the aged, sick, children, defectives, delinquents, homeless men, needy women and other special classes of persons needing charitable attention. In spite of the rain the meeting rooms were filled by an interested audience. After Mr. Weller's lecture on "Co-operation," the work of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society was explained by its superintendent, Miss E. W. Jefferson. In the general discussion which closed the meeting, graduate students from the Catholic University took an active part. Upon adjournment it was announced that next Tuesday, April 18, would mark the close of the "Six Lenten Lecture Conferences," the final lecture being devoted to "City Conditions and Constructive Move-ments - including Housing, Tuberculosis, Summer Outings and Play Grounds."

In discussing the importance of co-op ration among charitable agencies, Mr. Weller said: "Average individuals, active in promoting one charitable agency, are constantly in danger of ignoring its proper relation to other charities. They are slow to regard their particular philanthropy from he community's point of view."

The city's interests, he said, would naturally demand systematic co-operation be-tween all charitable agencies. If new philanthropies are to be established or old developed, it is clearly important that each new element thus added to the situation should be wisely adjusted and proportioned to the resources already existing, and to the needs for which provision has not yet been made. The lecturer referred to the fact, for example, that the appropriations for charities in the District of Columbia are larger than any other item in the local budget, except the amounts appropriated for the public schools, while a great deal of the city's charitable work is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. He emphasized the value and importance of personal attention to charitable problems by the ablest business men of the community.

He described the Associated Charities as a sort of "commercial agency" in charitable work, and all citizens were urged to consult the association concerning the func-tions, methods and needs of local charitable agencies, as well as the necessities of needy individual families. It was explained that individual families. It was explained that in several cities business men ask the advice of the Associated Charites concerning appeals which they receive for contributions to various philanthropies.

"Some day," concluded the lecturer, "the leaders of public opinion and the controllers of charitable purse strings will demand systematic, intimate co-operation among all the charitable agencies of each community. The results will include such economies of financial and personal resources, such prefinancial and personal resources, such prevention of pauperism and such promotion of wholesome self-help among the poor that all of us will regret the guilty selfishness which has so long postponed the advent of true charitableness and Christian common some?"
